

MAYORS' DAY OF RECOGNITION FOR NATIONAL SERVICE

WHEREAS, service to others is a hallmark of the American character, and central to how we meet our challenges together; and

WHEREAS, cities are increasingly turning to volunteer service as a cost-effective means to engage citizens and meet community needs; and

WHEREAS, service organizations such as AmeriCorps, the Corporation for National and Community Service, the Governor's Commission on Service and Volunteerism, Palouse-Clearwater Environmental Institute, and Lewis Clark Service Corps place members and volunteers to help educate tomorrow's workforce, support veterans and military families, protect the environment, aid in disaster-recovery, and more; and

WHEREAS, national service expands economic opportunities through education, job skills training, and leadership enhancement for participating members and for the volunteers they train and manage; and

WHEREAS, national service participants serve in more than 50,000 locations across the country, bolstering the civic, neighborhood, and faith-based organizations that are vital to economic and social well-being; and

WHEREAS, national service represents a public-private partnership that invests in community solutions and leverages resources to increase the return on taxpayer investment; and

WHEREAS, the dedication to community service is lasting, and influences future endeavors; and

WHEREAS, the Corporation for National and Community Service shares a priority with mayors across the country to engage citizens, improve lives, and strengthen communities;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Bill Lambert, Mayor for the City of Moscow, Idaho, do hereby proclaim April 4, 2017, to be
